Home Transformation Designer Colin Healy believes that our homes are reflections of our personalities and our values, and that expressing those values in our later years is more important than ever for a fulfilled life.

For over 25 years, Colin has been transforming homes for beauty, function and longevity. He helps homeowners reinvent their homes to fit their changing needs, and evolving passions, including the unique needs of multi-generational families.

He developed his Next Step Home Design Process TM to guide clients through the home design and construction experience with reduced risk and superior results through an unusual focus on creating clear goals and thorough investigations of needs and options before design begins.

Colin graduated Summa Cum Laude with a B-ARCH degree from the Spitzer School of Architecture at City College of New York. He is a Certified Aging in Place Specialist from the National Association of Home Builders and has lectured on "How to Create a Master Plan for Aging in Place." He co-authored 3 articles in 2018 for McKnight's Senior Living on Design of Senior Living Facilities. He can be reached through www.colinhealydesign.com.

Brian Sherwood has been a market research professional and consultant for the last 21 years. Along the way, while helping clients from Fortune 500 companies collect and Interpret customer insights, he found his calling when the Idea of Generation Bridge formed after a meeting with his United Methodist Church of Monroe council.

Passionate for face to face events and relationships, he created the Generation Bridge event platform meant to bring people closer to solutions for everyday challenges. He wants to get past generational stereotypes that create adversarial relationships and wants people to come together around common Issues and Interests In order to Improve Intergenerational communication.

In the middle of this, he became passionate for real estate and how It Impacts people he cares about like his parents. "Every year we see our life expectancy Increase. This creates very real questions like what do we need to consider when we live 25-35 years after retirement? We have to ask these question of ourselves, of our loved ones, and of our communities." Today Brian continues his work In events at Ceneration Bridge while also helping his real estate clients think through their futures and find the right situations to give them quality of life as they age!
